At a recent meeting of the Law School honorary society of Chi Tau Kappa, held in Hendrie Hall, Chief Justice Baldwin of Connecticut delivered an address to the new members, explaining the aims and objects of the organization and reasons for its maintenance. At this meeting, the society, which had heretofore been in an embryo state only, was fully organized and plans laid to make the chapter at Yale the mother chapter of an organization which will have chapters in every important law school in the country. The society was founded on April 22, 1908, to take the place in the Law School filled by Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi in the Academic and Scientific departments, respectively. Every man who has an honor stand, which is the official mark of excellent scholarship in the Law School, is eligible to membership. It is planned to have regular monthly meetings hereafter at which moot courts will be in session and papers on legal topics read by the active members. The officers for the year 1908-09 were elected as follows: Edward Colpitts Weyman, '09 L., of Apohaqui, N.
